POLLY'S BISCUIT.

"Polly, don't buy your pearls to-day." Polly Rutherford looked up quickly from the jeweler's case she was bending over, and saw Mr. McIlwaine standing at her side.

"Why shouldn't I buy to-day?" she cried. "I have had this hundred dollars in gold for almost a year, Mr. McIlwaine, trying to make up my mind what I wanted most; now my birthday is almost here again, and I am afraid Grandpa will make this do for two birthdays, if I don't hurry and spend it."

But Polly's gay little laugh was checked by a look of unmistakable compassion in the gentleman's eyes. The color faded a little from her bright young face, but she would not ask any questions here in the crowded store.

"You may put them back to-day, Mr. West," she said to the jeweler. "I'll come again to-morrow."

"Very well, Miss Rutherford," said the vexed salesman, concealing his disappointment, "I shall reserve them for you."

Polly left the tempting store with Mr. McIlwaine, and once on the street turned upon him a pair of frank, questioning eyes, which he found hard to answer.

Paul McIlwaine was a friend of the Rutherford family; but not specially of little Polly; she was only sixteen, a mere child to the hard-working lawyer of thirty, and one he considered as altogether too frivolous and empty. Polly was an only daughter, living with a widowed mother in her grandfather's elegant house, and if she was not a spoiled girl it was not the fault of the doting old grandfather, whose idol she had been from her babyhood.

"What did you mean, Mr. McIlwaine?" she asked, presently finding that the questioning look brought no reply. And then, seeing how embarrassed he seemed about answering, she said, with a sudden fear, "Have you been at Grandpa's since I left? Is anything the matter?"

"They are all well," he said, answering the thought which he knew was in her mind, "but something has happened, Polly, of course, or I would not have interfered with your purchase."

"Oh! tell me, tell me," said the girl in an agitated voice. "Why do you keep me in suspense?"

"What a blunderer I am," thought her companion. "If I tell her out here on the street, there will be a scene; but I'm in for it now, and if I don't tell her I suppose there will be a scene; that's the way with these fine young ladies."

"It is a hard thing to say to you, Polly, but your grandfather has failed."

"Failed," repeated Polly vaguely, "you mean he has lost his money? Is that all? Is that what you were afraid to tell me?"

"That 'all' means a good deal more than you seem to understand, said Paul McIlwaine, impatiently; "it means loss and grief and disappointment and poverty to one of the best gentlemen in the world; it means hard work to your mother who has no strength for work; to you ——"

He stopped, and Polly said quickly, feeling the tinge of contempt in his tone: "Never mind about me, but I see now how bad it will be; poor Grandpa! Mr. McIlwaine does—must—will anybody else lose by Grandpa's failure?"

"It is too soon to say positively," he replied, "but I think not. I think he has quit business in time to leave his creditors any appreciable loss."

Polly's head was up now, and her eyes shining. "Dear old Grandpa," she said, "bless his heart; I am ashamed that I asked the question; I might have known. But, oh! I'm so much obliged to you for keeping me from spending my hundred dollars; it was very kind of you, very; I don't know how you came to find me. How long have you known about Grandpa?"

"It only came out this morning, and took us all entirely by surprise. But here we are at your door; good-by, my dear; if I can be of service to you in any way, (he had meant to offer her money, but he was suddenly afraid to speak of such a thing to the spirited-looking girl before him,) remember the long intimacy between our families gives me a right to help you."

"Thank you," she said simply; it was all she had voice for, and, using her latchkey, she let herself into the house.

"Bless me!" said the young lawyer, as he walked off, "but the girl has pluck! It was very pretty, and entirely womanly, too, the way she thought of others, her grandfather and the creditors. I didn't think little Polly had it in her."

If he had seen little Polly at this minute, he might not have thought she had so much in her; she had slipped noiselessly into the great handsome front parlor and dropped down on one of the low cushioned divans, "all in a heap," as the girls say. For two whole hours she kept herself hid in the parlor, nobody knowing she was in the house, and in that long, silent time, when she heard only the tinkling little bronze clock, and her own irregular breathing, something happened to Polly, almost like what happens to the moth when it comes out of the cocoon. It happened to the Polly that was hid away inside of the Polly that everybody knew; and who shall say but that this great, startling change of fortune was not sent to keep that inside Polly from being smothered and dwarfed by the outside Polly!

When she went to find her mother and grandfather, it was with a bright face and steady voice.

A few days after this, Polly brought up a dainty little breakfast to her mother, who was quite overcome by their disaster, as was the poor old grandfather.

"Come, mother," Polly said blithely, "I made these biscuits, and you've got to eat two. What a good thing it was that you had that hobby about teaching me to do things; don't it fit in nicely now?"

"It was a theory of your father's" answered the mother, in a depressed tone; "I promised him when you were a wee baby in long clothes that I would have you taught to do everything that women can do, and of course, after his death, I felt the more bound to do it. But I don't know why you should make so much of it now; you can't support yourself by making biscuits."

"I don't know," said Polly, carelessly; "I dont know," she repeated more earnestly, springing up and walking about the room as if her mind were not following her footsteps.

In a few weeks the Rutherfords had moved into a small down-town house, with all the available rooms "let," and poor old Mr. Rutherford was trying feebly to discharge the duties of a small salaried office into which his friends had put him.

Polly's mother seemed quite crushed at first, but the girl herself was buoyant with hope, as every young girl has a right to be, no matter what her style of living is—or is not.

Thanks to Mr. McIlwaine, she had her hundred dollars now to invest in an enterprise on which she had set her heart far more than it had ever been set on the pearls. And along with the hundred dollars she had also to invest in it youth, health, good sense, a brave spirit, and a proud independence. What else needed she for a happy and successful life?

Her enterprise began with a visit, basket in hand, to seven or eight of the best city hotels, and as many of the restaurants; to all of them she offered a daily, weekly, or tri-weekly supply of her dainty little beaten biscuit, such as she had learned to make down in eastern Virginia, from a famous old cook, who had in slave days belonged to her father's family. She was successful almost up to her own expectations, and far beyond her mother's, and her elation could not but infuse some hope into that lady's weak spirit.

"We must have a new name for your biscuit, miss," said one wise old restaurant keeper; "what shall we call them?"

"Call them," said Polly, hesitating and laughing, "call them the Polly-wolly-winkum biscuit."

The Polly-wolly-winkum biscuit got to be the fashion that winter; after hiring one good cook at what seemed ruinous wages, a second and a third had to be engaged; but Polly put on her great kitchen apron, tied up her abundant hair into a high knot, and spent four hours of every day in her kitchen herself; no plea of other engagements, no pretense that the cooks would do as well without her, no tempting offer of sleighrides, no flattering invitations of any sort could make the little mistress of the bakery break her rule, or neglect her work. Naturally the biscuit grew in favor.

The last time I visited the Polly-wolly-winkum bakery, it had moved its quarters to a large, well-lighted kitchen, with a class-room attached. Yes, a class-room; for Polly had agreed to teach cooking to a number of rich men's daughters at a good round price per girl, and, not to lose the chance of doing good because she was poor, she selected a dozen poor girls to whom she gave another hour a week, without pay.

Mr. Paul McIlwaine was my cicerone on the occasion of my visit and when I had admired and praised until the English language was exhausted he said, gravely:

"Nevertheless a suit is pending in court against the Polly-wolly-winkum bakery; it is charged that Miss Rutherford is dishonestly withholding from all the young gentlemen of her acquaintance the time and thought and interest they believe to be their due."

"That is a dreadful charge, Polly-wink um," said I. "What are you going to do about it?"

"I'll engage Mr. McIlwaine to defend me," replied the little bakeress, running to look into an oven. But somehow her face was red even before she opened the oven door.

The Conductor's Jaw Dropped.

One of those smart Alexanders who travel on check and the inability of the public to change $20 bills for a glass of soda or four tobies got into a Penn avenue car the other day and tendered the aforesaid $20 for his fare. Of course the conductor could not change it, and so he got his ride free. This was repeated until the conductor got tired of it and after the fourth or fifth time of its repetition ha determined to get even with the fellow. By visiting the toll-houses, and by other means unknown, the manipulator of the bell-punch managed to scrape up $19.95 in pennies.

Placing these in a little bucket he quietly awaited the appearance of his victim, having posted the driver and some other intimate friends who happened to be on board. When the unsuspecting young man with the plethoric pocketbook put in an appearance and promptly produced the "20" with many apologies the conductor pocketed the bill and amid the grins of spectators presented it to his customer. The young man looked pretty cheap, and, after feeling the heft of the bucket thoughtfully got off the car and disappeared around a corner. Then the conductor took the bill from his pocket and proceeded to fold it up nicely, so that it would fit into a convenient corner of his pocket book. Something in the appearance of the bill caught his eye, and as he examined it a little closer, his jaw dropped about a foot. The bill was of the genus denominated by the sporting fraternity as "queer." The young man had also been laying for the conductor.

Coming Changes in Postal Stamps.

The Postoffice Department, has made changes in color and design of some of its adhesive stamps and impressed upon envelopes. The two cent adhesive stamp now issued in red will be changed to green. The three cent adhesive stamp, now issued in green will be changed to vermillion The design of the adhesive stamps will remain unchanged. In the stamped envelopes the two cent envelope will be changed from red to green, the four cent envelope will be changed from green to carmine, the five cent from brown to dark blue, the thirty cent from black to brown, and the ninety cent from carmine to purple. The design of the stamped envelopes will also be the same as now, except with the one, two four and five cent denomination. The heads on these stamps have been re-engraved and have a slightly different appearance from the old stamps and the ornamentatian around them is also slightly different. One purpose in making the changes in color is to have that of stamped envelopes correspond as nearly as possible with that of the adhesive stamp.

The Hessians.

The prejudice of our forefathers against the Hessians of foreign mercenaries who were sent to this country by the English government to subdue the colonies was so great that these troops have since always been spoken of with contempt. They were really regarded among the best soldiers in Europe. The contract of England with the Landgrave of Hesse called for 12,700 men, besides "three corps of artillery," the latter probably numbering a few hundred gunners in all. But the Landgrave practiced the grossests frauds, receiving pay for the full number, counting incomplete battallions, deserters, the dead, etc. In addition to the Hessians, England employed 5,723 Brunswickers in the revolutionary war.

A RICH REDSKIN.

An Indian Who is Building a Railroad Out West.

A recent letter from Newton, Mo., to the Kansas City Journal says: Had any one predicted a quarter of a century ago that an American Indian would build a railroad he would have been considered a fit object for a lunatic asylum. But to-day the people of Newton County, Mo., a county adjoining the Indian Territory have witnessed a scene such as man never before beheld. Mathias Splitlog, a half Cayuga and half Wyandotte Indian, born in an Indian village in Canada, to-day at Neosho drove the first spike for the Kansas City, Fort Smith and Southern Railway. This division of the Kansas City, Fort Smith and Southern railway was chartered the 8th of last March under the laws of the State of Missouri, with a capital of $3,000,000, and now there are about 35 miles graded and ready for the iron.

Mr. Splitlog has furnish the "sinews of war" out of his own ample fortune, and is backed by heavy capitalists to complete the road, and before the 1st of next January he will have the cars running from Joplin, in Jasper County, to the town of Splitlog, in McDonald County, a distance of about thirty-five miles, and Matthias Splitlog, the millionaire Indian, who is probably the richest man of his race, will henceforth be known all over the country as the only Indian railroad man (at least the first) in the United States or in the whole world.

The occasion of driving the first spike on the main line of this new road was a matter of more than ordinary interest to the people of Neosho. At 3.15 there were about one thousand people assembled at the point where the main line crosses the 'Frisco track. After music by the Indian band from the Territory, and selections by the Neosho band, Mr. Charles W. Smith of the construction company, held the spike in position, and in four bold strikes Mr. Splitlog drove the spike home in a carefully selected whiteoak tie. Cheer after cheer was given for the road, Matthias Splitlog, Neosho and the enterprise, after which many came to the track to look at the spike. Mr. Splitlog wielded the sledge with a familiarity and precision which indicated that he had used his sledge with good effect when he built his steamboat on the Detroit river.

Mr. Splitlog was born in the year 1813, and while a boy was apprenticed to a carpenter and millwright, and, although his wages were only $7 per month, young Splitlog thought he was getting rich. He imbibed a love for machinery and inventions which has made his life a useful and eventful one. In the year 1842 young Splitlog joined the Wyandottes, who were the last of the Indian tribes then in Ohio. In 1843 Splitlog came west with some of the tribe, and found, after his arrival at Westport landing (now Kansas City), that he only had 50 cents in his pocket. He induced an old Indian to go his security for the price of an axe. With this axe he cut cordwood for the steamboats at 25 cents per cord, and, after paying for the axe, which cost $2, he soon saved enough to buy a pony.

About the year 1864 he married Eliza Barnett, a grandniece of Harry Jacques, the old Indian who went his security for the price of the axe. Her father was head chief of the Wyandottes when he died in 1838. Her mother was a part Wyandotte and part Seneca Indian. They have a family of five children—four sons and one daughter. Splitlog was never idle, and in most of his undertakings he was successful At an early day he built a mill near Wyandotte, which was first run by horse power and afterwards by steam. Splitlog's mill was a success and was long an old landmark near Wyandotte. He began to speculate in real estate, and, although he can neither read not write, he has been one of the most successful speculators in the neighborhood of Kansas City, and is to-day worth over $1,000,000. Many interesting incidents could be written in connection with his useful life.

Bashful Bridegrooms.

A justice of the peace in Saratoga county recently joined a pair who were so embarrassed that they hardly knew what they were doing. The man wore a white straw hat which he whirled on his finger before the ceremony began. When told to stand up he jumped before the justice with great alacrity. For a few moments he did not know what to do with the hat, but finally found his way out of the difficulty by putting it between his knees. This was too much for the bride. With the handle of her parasol she caught the hat, pulled it from its position and then, abashed at her audacity, dropped hat and parasol to the floor.

The same justice tells a story of another couple who came to be married. The man was dreadfully puzzled, and without realizing the act pulled a cigar from his pocket and began twirling it around. When that portion of the ceremony was reached where bride and groom join hands, he happened to have the cigar in his right hand. What to do with the cigar he apparently did not know. The justice paused a minute and then again directed the pair to join hands. By this time the poor fellow's embarrassment was painful. He gave one agonized look at the justice of the peace and stuck the cigar in his mouth. Before the ceremony could be concluded the justice had to take the cigar from between the man's lips.

MAKING THE FIRE FLY.

A Man whose Electric Fingers Cause Him Great Trouble.

[From the Philadelphia News.]

Anton Saverne, a Belgian cabinet-maker employed at a Kensingtonship-yard, has the wonderful power of producing electric sparks by rubbing his fingers. Saverne is a little swarthy fellow, about 40 years old with a bushy head of hair, keen blue eyes—very rare among his countrymen—and very small hands. His motions prove that he is excessively nervous, and his sense of hearing, sight, and smell, as he assured a reportor of the Daily News yesterday, are unusally acute. His parents still live on a farm in Belgium, near Brussels, and he is the youngest of a family of eleven children.

'I know not how I do it,' he said last evening as the reporter saw sparks shoot from Saverne's fingers. The cabinetmaker rubbed his finger tips rapidly up and down upon his trousers. Then holding his hands out with the fingers widely extended, jets of tiny yellow flames, or long sparks shot out. They seemed propelled by some unseen force ten or twelve inches into the air, when they vanished. The right hand appeared more charged with electricity, if the sparks are electric, than the left. The lamp in Saverne's front room was put out so that the sparks might be seen in all their brillancy. It was a wonderful sight. Again and again did the bushy-head Belgian rub his fingers and hold them out while tiny showers of bright sparks darted out as if from toy fireworks.

'I was not always so.' said Saverne, lightning the lamp and his black pipe, filled with villanous tobacco, at the same time. 'When I had been sick ten years ago it was said I would die, I lay so weak one night in my father's house when there came up a storm. Such thunder and lightning I never knew before. And my body had queer sensations. While I lay covered up with bedclothes, my mother sat holding her face in her hands by my side, and I seemed to feel a thousand needles pricking my limbs and chest and the soles of my feet. It was not so painful for queer thrills came with every prick, and when the thunder rolled away and the rain stopped I rose up, leaned back, and put out my hand to take that of my mother's. My eyes were closed, but I heard her say 'Anton!'

'What?' I gasped weakly.

'Your hand.'

'I looked at it. The one nearest to her. It was all aflame. I was terrified. My cry brought my father and sisters to the room. They looked at me in horror. I took my other hand from the clothes to rub the right. Sparks shot from the fingers of the left. Soon they died away, but I have but to rub my hands, as you have seen and the lights come.

Saverne told of the hardships brought upon him by his singular faculty. The neighboring peasants in Belgium avoided him and told awful stories of his being in league with the devil. Men would not hire him to plough or work in harvest time. His own family clung to him, but the farm was small and he came to this country five years ago. Here he learned the cabinet-making trade and got employment at finishing ship interiors. But when his companions saw his faculty or infirmity they treated him coldly. His ignorant neighbors in Schleswig street regarded him as possessed of an evil spirit. Saverne's electric fingers are the curse of his existence.

Profitable Mistakes.

An enterprising young undertaker once went out to Jamaica from London in hopes of bettering his condition. He was not disappointed, business flourished, and he wrote to his father in England to send him a supply of black and gray cloth and twenty gross of black tacks. Carelessly however, he omitted to cross the T, and the order was read 'twenty gross of black jacks.' So his relative had made and shipped to him this large quantity of quart and pint tin pots, ornamented with painting, and to which the maker had given the quaint name 'Black Jacks.' The young man, as may be imagined, was aghast at receiving the apparently useless consignment; but an ingenious friend consoled him by offering to take them off him hands at the invoice price and glad enough he was to agree to this proposition. His bright friend then advertised for sale a new and fashionable punch vase just imported from new England, and disposed of every one of the jacks, making 200 per cent. Some time afterward, as the young men were talking over the lucky blunder, the friend said to the undertaker in fun: Write to your father now and order a gross of warming pans, just to see whether the well-informed people of London will have the sagacity to consider such articles necessary in this latitude. Number one laughed at the idea, but thinking it was a good joke really did as suggested and sure enough the literal old goose of a father actually dispatched a gross of warming pans to the tropical island of Jamaica.

Again the son was in despair, and again his friend came to the rescue and purchased the lot. He then knocked off the covers and sold them to the planters as a new kind of sugar ladle. They went off like hot cakes and he realized a large profit.

Both young men returned home to England with fortunes, and had many a good laugh as they related the story of the black jacks and warming pans, number two always ending with, 'nothing is lost in a good market,' and he might have added 'A ready wit can make things fit.'—American Agriculturist.

NEXT Saturday is the last day to pay a voting tax. We don't care what Republicans may do about it, but we urge Democrats by all means to attend to this matter, if they have not done so yet.

"OUR SIDE BEST," is the triumphant exclamation among American yachting people, since the Volunteer got away so nicely from the Scotch Thistle, whose owner is in a bad humor about it and wants to sell his boat.

SUPERINTENDENT Higbee has appointed Friday, October 21st as Autumn School Arbor Day and earnestly urges upon Superintendents, teachers and school officers throughout the State, to use all efforts to forward the important work of planting trees.

THE Democratic ticket nominated in the city of Philadelphia last week is being recognized as a very strong one by both parties, and in the face of Leeds' wild way of running the republican campaign, and the organization of an independent movement the chances for the election of the democratic candidates are unusually bright.

SINCE it is pretty generally known that Ben Butler draws from his extensive law practice an income of $150,000 to $200,000 annually, he is dead as a labor candidate. A similar fate awaits that labor apostel, Henry George, who stars very prominently on the political sky at present. He is said to have made no less than $40,000 to $50,000 during the past year and is a contemptible miser at that.

THE Bellefonte Gazette is doing all in its power to bring about the defeat of Mr. Griest, the democratic candidate for county commissioner. That in itself should be an impetus for the Democracy to do all in their power to elect him. He is indisputably the best man for the position. Mr. Griest was justly and fairly the choice of the convention, and we believe that he is the choice of a great majority of democratic voters. And why should he not be. Third term or not, he did the very best for the taxpayers of the county during the last two terms and the people of Centre county know a good man when they see his works. Vote for Griest and economy.

PRESIDENT Cleveland and his handsome wife started on their western trip last Friday in a special train of Pullman cars and arrived at St Louis, their objective stopping point on Sunday night, after eleven o'clock. Their journey through Pennsylvania and Indiana was a continuous ovation, all the people along the line doing homage to the chief magistrate. The reception at St. Louis leaves but little doubt that the western people think a great deal of Cleveland, as a president. The weather too is as fair as it could be asked to be, and thus there is nothing to dampen the enthusiasm of the people. The President's addresses along the route were all brief and to the point and were universally received with respect and favor. We are just dead sure that Grover makes thousands of votes for 1888 on his trip. He has a considerable amount of that personal magnetism about him, that was claimed for James G. Blaine, but was of no avail to him in his race for the White House.

THERE is no use disguising the fact that John Noll, the democratic candidate for sheriff, is daily gaining friends not only in his own party but amoagthe Republicans; his past record is beyond reproach, he is a veteran soldier who faithfully and bravely served his country, is a hard working mechanic and a gentleman naturally. We predict he will get there by a rousing majority, because all will vote for Noll.

EXACTLY! What else could be expected from a corporation governor. Beaver refuses to call an extra session of the Legislature, for the purpose of reconsidering the lost revenue bill, and that settles it. The corporations don't want to pay any taxes, and the revenue bill must under no circumstances become a law. Gov. Beaver is simply the tool of ther ich corparations and must dance to the tune they whistle. Things will remain as they are—the poor man pays the taxes and the wealthy corporations are several millions in pocket simply because they are more powerful than the people. So much for Republican rule. We say vote the Democratic state ticket and put men in office who have some regard for the interests of the people and are not entirely influenced by corporative power.

THE commercial failures for 1887 promise to fall behind those of any year since 1882. The total number of failures for the first nine months of the current year, as compiled by Bradstreet's is 6,958. For the same period in 1886 they numbered 7,518; in 1885, 8,433; in 1884, 8,302, and in 1883, 7,358. This indicates a total number of failures for 1887 of 9,700, against 10,568 in 1886, 11,116 in 1885, 11,620 in 1884 and 10,299 in 1883. Of course, some unforseen financial disturbance may greatly increase these figures during the next three months. The prospect at present, however, is that there will be fewer failures, in spite of the vast increase in the number of business concerns, than at any time in five years. This is one of the significant signs of general prosperity that is worthy of note.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 3, 1887.

Perhaps I could not better begin this letter than by giving a brief description of the elegantly appointed and equipped train that is bearing the Presidential party on their great Western and Southern tour, about which so much had been said and written. The train consists of three Pullman cars, connected in such a way that one can walk from one end to the other without opening a door or being exposed to the weather or other discomfort, and the coaches are richly and fashionably furnished and upholstered—among the articles being a beautiful bedroom, centre-table, inlaid writing desks, sofas, rocking chairs, barber chairs, and several large mirrors—to say nothing of a bathroom and smoking compartment, and to cap the climax, the cars are heated by steam from the locomotive and furnished with electric lights from the same source. Washington has certainly never before seen such a splendidly outfitted train. Geo. M. Pullman gave his personal attention to the details, and the outlay is said to represent a capital of $200,000 and it is further stated that the President will be at an expense of $100,000 for the trip. The party consisted of the President and Mrs. Cleveland, Private Secretary Lamont, two or three personal friends of Mr. Cleveland, and three representatives of the press. A great crowd assembled at the Baltimore and Potomac depot to see the distinguished travelers depart, —Secretaries Bayard, Endicott and Whitney being of the number. The floral favors to Mrs. Cleveland were lavish and rarely beautiful.

An important act of the President before leaving was the appointment of Secretary Bayard and Messrs. Wm. L. Putnam, of Maine, and Jas. B. Angell, of Michigan, to act as commissioners in the adjustment of the question of the fisheries troubles with our northern neighbors. All of these gentlemen have had sufficient diplomatic training in positions of public trust to warrant the belief, that if a satisfactory settlement of the international controversy is possible, the country may confidently expect such a result at their hands—a consummation devoutly to be wished.

At the last Cabinet meeting the financial situation was exhaustively discussed, with the purpose to provide against a possible recurrence of the recent stringency in the commercial world, and a decided difference of opinion was developed regarding the authority of the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase bonds not required for the sinking fund—the result being that it was determined to refer the matter to the decision of the Attorney General, in case there should apparently arise the necessity of such action on the part of the Secretary, to relieve the money market.

It appears that the monetary alarm was more a matter of imagination than reality, generally speaking, for the very simple reason that the volume of currency was increased seventy five million dollars last year which goes to show that the business interests of the country are in a healthy condition.

It is calculated at the Treasury that the Government has saved in interest by the prepayment of bonds under the circular of last mouth the handsome sum of $3,200,000 —not to mention the probably immense financial losses it prevented individuals from suffering.

The Naval Board has concluded to construct at Norfolk the 6,000 ton battleship, authorized by the act of Congress at a cost of $2,376,000, which is $125,000 less than the appropriation provides. It will take about eighteen months to finish the work on this great monster of the deep.

The organization of department clerks into state Associations, of which there are several, has been the occasion of one of the most sensational episodes of the present Administration. These organizations partake of a political as well as a social character—the real object being to protect the members in their official positions. On being invited to address the Illinois Democratic Association, Civil Service Commissioner Oberly not only declined to accept the compliment, but wrote the "Suckers" a long letter, informing them that the existence of their Assaciotion is a violation of the civil service act, and demonishing the members that for such infraction they are liable to the penalties of the law.

Miscellaneous News.

Jenny Lind the great singer was stricken with paralysis at her London home.

Judge Roe the new Commander-in-Chief.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—Judge Roe, of Minnesota, was elected commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. on the first ballot by a majority of 24. Columbus, Ohio, has been decided on as the place for the next encampment of the Grand Army Republic.

A Worthy Appointment.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—Today Sergeant Holtzworth, the battle field guide, was appointed superintendent of the national cemetery situated here, in place of Sergeant Wilson who has resigned in order to assume the duties of superintendent of monuments, grounds and avenues of the Battlefield Memorial association.

A Long Drop.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Sept. 30.—C. W. Williams, of Cincinnati, made a successful parachute descent at the Mexico fair grounds from a baloon 3,000 in the air in the presence of 5,000 persons. Upon cutting loose from the balloon the parachute failed to inflate, owing to the ropes becoming entangled, and he fell 500 feet, when the ribs broke and the parachute inflated. He landed in a heap in a cornfield. But for the breaking of the ribs he would have been killed.

Three Men and Two Boys Lose Their Lives in the Bost Colliery.

POTTSVILLE, October 1.—This afternoon a pillar between breasts 91 and 98 in the mines at Bost Colliery run, carrying with it a large amount of gas, which was so strong that it reversed the motion of the fan, drove wagons off the track and blew the mules in all directions. It was almost impossible for the men in breast 96 to escape and all were suffocated. Workmen in neighboring breasts were overcome by the deadly gas and many are now lying in a precarious condition.

A Boom in Anthracite Coal.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 4.—Officers of the Reading company reportan extraordinary demand all for sizes of anthracite coal. The following circular was issued to agents: Do not send any more orders until further notice for any kind or size excepting white ash, chestnut and pea." The following was also sent out to agents shipping coal to the outside points: "We are not accepting any orders at present. but if we were to do so the following would be the prices for hard white ash sizes. Lump steamboat and egg, $4; stove, $4.25; chestnut, $1.75 and pea $2 35.

Surveying for a New Railroad.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—Major Borne and his corps of engineers this morning commenced surveying a line from Blue Ridge Summit, this county, to Orrtanna, Adams county, the presentterminus of the Tape Worm railroad, a branch of the Western Maryland. The Tape Worm will be run to Blue Ridge Summit and make connection with the main line of the Western Maryland thus bringing Gettysburg within fifty miles of Chambersburg by this route. It will take but a short time to make the survey when a large force of men will be put to work grading the road and putting down the iron.

Applauding a Preacher in Church.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—An unusual scene occurred at the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church to-night, when the Rev. John H. Newman in a sermon on "Infidelity," referred in severe terms to the anarchists. Could any American citizen," he said, "ten years ago have imagined the circulation of a petition to pardon those whose hands are red with the blood of the defenders of public peace and safety. What is back of this anarchy, this daredevil movement on the part of those villains who ought to have been hung long ago?" At this point many of the audience rose to their feet, clapped their hands and with loud demonstrations announced their approval of the minister's words.

The B. and O. Deal.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct, 4.—The Record to-day will say: "It was unauthoritively stated in this city yesterday that negotiationsbetween the Western Union telegraph company and the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph company by which the former is to obtain control of the latter have been practically settled and will be made known formally at the next annual meeting of the stockholders of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company. At that time Garrett will announce the sale of the telegraphic privileges and tender his resignation as president of the company. First Vice-President Spencer will be elected as his successor, and it is declared that there will be radical changes in the executive officers of the company."

A Halt Called on Recent Lawlessness in the Wyoming Valley.

WILKESBARRE, October 1.—A two weeks term of criminal court ended this evening and Judge Rice and the District Attorney are congratulated on all sides for the quick dispatch of the business before them. The Hungarians and Poles became so disorderly within the last two years that they looked upon American laws as a farce. It was no unusual thing after a pay day at the mines to find a man shot or stabbed and dying by the roadside, the victim of some fellow-countryman's pistol or stiletto.

Finally public opinion was aroused in the matter and the County Commissioners offered $500 for the detection of the murderers. The arrest of four murderers followed and at this session of court, which ended to-day, the whole four were convicted.

'Huns" Leaving the Lehigh Region.

HAZELTON, Pa., Oct. 4.—The Hungarians employed in the part of the Lehigh coal region affected by the strike are packing up and leaving in large numbers for other places. When Lehigh Valley passenger No. 10, of six cars left Lumber yard station on the Highland branch yesterday, it was packed with "Huns" bound for Scranton, where they are to work in the mines near that city and other parts of the Lackawanna region. Two more carloads left this morning. Nearly every day a carload of "Huns" pass through on their way across the sea. The Hazleton region is now almost rid of all its Hungarians and Slavonians.

THE SECOND VICTORY.

No Race Won Fairer Than Volunteer's Achievements.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Of all the races for the American cup none was ever sailed before under the conditions which prevailed at to-day's races, and none was ever more fairly won than this in which the Volunteer defeated the Scotch cutter Thistle, over the outside course of forty miles. The only regret the people have who saw the race is that the Thistle was not able to show more seaworthy qualities and thus make the contest a closer one. For a half hour after the start it was plain that the Thistle was a beaten boat unless a fluke of the shift of wind should save her from what promised to be an overwhelming defeat. In the twenty mile thrash to windward the contraband type told so heavily against the keel that the cutter was beaten in 10:49, The Thistle redeemed herself a little coming home by gaining 2:22 on the Volunteer. The corrected time of the finish is Volunteer 5.42:26 1 4, Thistle 5.54:45.

A SCHOOLBOY'S CRIME.

Two Buildings and the Life of a Fellow Student is Destroyed by a Rash Act.

VASSALBORO, Me., Oct. 2.—On the night of Aug. 31 the large main building of the Oak Grove seminary was destroyed by an incendiary fire and one of the boy students was burned to death. Eighteen days later the gymnasium building was burned. For various reasons the seminary managers suspected George Harrington, 15 years old who had been an inmate of the institution for several months. Harrington fled a few days ago, but he was traced to Brocton, Mass., arrested and brought back. This morning he confessed quite boastfully that he set both fires because he wasn't allowed to study bookkeeping, and he didn't like the food at the seminary table.

Young Harrington made his confession in a cold brazen manner, and seemed to have no conception in the enormity of his offence, or that he committed murder. The burning of Stephen Jones in the building will fix that crime upon him. Harrington is an orphen of good parentage and is under the guardianship of Mr. Hitchborn of Stockton. He was arraigned yesterday morning, and committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

A Chester County Thief Who Scorned an Iron-Clad Cell.

WEST CHESTER, October 1.—When the under keeper of the Chester County Prison came to George Trowery's cell this morning for the purpose of dispensing to that inmate his breakfast he found more light in that apartment than the law allows and Towery missing. Upon his calling Keeper Wells and making an investigation of the situation a large hole 11 x 16 inches was discovered in the ceiling, and this communicated with a narrow passageway made between the partition walls of two cells, thence up to the roof and another hole large enough to admit a good-sized man's body was found, and thus the story was told that Trowery, having decided to be a guest no longer of that bastile, had cut his way out through solid masonry, between heavy iron plates, and again through pine boards and a tin roof, and then in a jiffy, by means of a rope improvised for the occasion, his descent was sure and rapid.

Trowery is a mulatto, and was captured less than a month ago upon the charge of stealing some household goods and silverware from the residence of Mrs. Phoebe Eldredge, in East Marlborough township, in 1885. He is 30 years of age, and his versatility for eluding the clutches of the law is decidedly remarkable. The cell from which he escaped is an iron-clad one, and the tools with which he worked and by the means of which he effected his escape, were an old broom handle pointed at one end and a bit of hoop iron.

The Unpleasant Experience of Travelers on a Western Pennsylvania Railroad.

GREENSBURG, Pa, October 3.—The passengers on a way train running on the Sewickley Branch of the Southwest Railroad had a rather terrifying experience early this morning. It reminded them of stories they had read of banditti, highwaymen and road agents, who make things more or less interesting to travelers in stage coaches and railroad trains on the distant frontiers. There were pistols and bowie-knives and razors in the air, and the engineer and his fireman, three brakemen and the few passengers on board the train were kept in an unwonted state of excitement for several hours. The Sewickley Road, which is a little branch only ten miles long, runs through the Pleasant Unity coke field. There are plenty of lonesome places along the road, and it was at one of these points, while the train was running at a slow rate early this morning, that a band of negroes, variously estimated at from twenty five to thirty, jumped aboard and caused a panic by their villainous demonstrations. The party had been concealed among the bushes that line the road, and at given a signal from their leader, a tall, herculean fellow with a coal black skin, they jumped aboard. Three of the party with drawn revolvers, entered the cab of the engine and held the engineer and the fireman in check, while the rest of the gang scattered themselves through the train and collected the money and valuables of the passengers. As there were only a few of the latter on board no attempt at resistance was made, and the robbers didn't get much booty.

Deafness Can't be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out, and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

EXHAUSTED VITALITY.

Health and Strength Regained

Knowledge is Power: Read!

The above cut represents the obverse and reverse sides of the GOLD and JEWELLED MEDAL presented to Dr. W. H. Parker by the NATIONAL MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, in recognition of his masterly Medical Treatise, entitled the SCIENCE OF LIFE OR SELF PRESERVATION, which treats upon Nervous and Physical Debility, Premature Decline, Exhausted Vitality, and the ten thousand ills that flesh is heir to, whether arising from Errors of Youth, Imprudence, Over Taxation, Excesses, Accidental or Constitutional Predisposition. It is an invaluable treatise for the Young, the Middle-Aged, and even the Old, whether in health or disease. No other work equal to it has ever been published. It has been highly praised by the newspaper press throughout the country, and even in England. Three hundred pages, substantially bound, embossed muslin, full gilt. Contains 125 extraordinary prescriptions for prevailing diseases, either one of which is worth five times the price of the book, while some of them are absolutely invaluable, and should be in the hands of everybody. Guaranteed the best work upon the above named subjects, or the money returned in every instance.

PRICE ONLY ONE DOLLAR, by mail postpaid, and concealed in plain wrapper. Illustrative pamphlet, prospectus, free, if you send now. Cut this out, as you may never see it again. Address DR. W. H. PARKER, No. 4 BULFINCH ST., BOSTON, MASS., who is the CHIEF CONSULTING PHYSICIAN of the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, and may be confidentially consulted on all diseases requiring skill and experience.

—Ira Snyder's cider press, which is in full blast at Musser & Gephart's saw mill in the Gap turns out cider at the rate or forty barrels per day.

—Are you weak and weary, overworked and tired? Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine to purify your blood and give you strength.

—The ready-made Oyershirts on exhibition at Kauffman's store are worthwhile looking at, to say the least. And seeing is buying, in this case.

—The Methodist congregation at this place celebrated the Lord's supper on last Sunday evening and the church was filled to its utmost capacity.

—The late strikes in the coal regions are seriously affecting the coal market. Prices are working upwards and the coal dealers expect a lively time.

—Mr. James A. Weit and wife, of Boalsburg, were visiting relatives and friends in this part last week and also gave the JOURNAL office a pleasant call.

—David Miller is preparing to weatherboard his dwelling house on Penn street. The necessary lumber is already on the ground.

—Man at the telephone—You miss a treat if you neglect Musser's stock of boots and shoes. Go and examine them, they are bound to give satisfaction.

—The borough fathers had a meeting on Monday evening to look after the interests of the town. The business transacted was of minor importance

FOR SALE.—The property of John Swartz, Sr., late of Millheim, deceased, situate on North street, is offered for sale. Apply to or address
G. W. SWARTZ, Executor,
Lewistown, Pa.

—This portion of the country was visited by heavy rains, accompanied by thunder and lightning, last Thursday and Friday night. More of the rain would not be an injury.

—Centre Hall is full of big ideas. They now expect a syndicate to come and build a monstrously big hotel there. They also want a permanent park or grove for picnic purposes. Whoop 'er up!

—G. W. Wolf, of Fiedler, Haines twp., Pa., writes us to tell the people that he has the best cider press in the county. We therefor advise those who have any apples to grind up to give his press a trial.

—The residence of Major Wm. F. Reynolds at Bellefonte was visited by burglars last Friday night. They succeeded in getting away with some silverware, a pair of the Major's shoes and a lot of victuals.

—Mr. Brooks, of Bellefonte, representing the Daily News, Republican and Fountain, of that place, was in town last week, to hunt up delinquent subscribers and make collections. Mr. B. is an agreeable and gentlemanly collector.

—Next Tuesday evening District Attorney James B. Correll, of Williamsport, is to be married to Miss Mary Blanchard Mayor, daughter of President Judge Mayor, of Lock Haven, the event to take place in the Presbyterian church of that place.

—Geo. Mensh, of this place, packed his "grip-sack" last week and started for Sunbury to enter upon the duties of brakeman on the Penna. railroad. We hope George will have good luck on the road and be promoted to a better position in the near future.

—John T. McDivitt left a very good sweet pumpkin at the JOURNAL office last week. B. O. Deininger followed with a peck of large and delicious quinces. Right, bring in your specimens, we'll see to it that they won't spoil.

—Mrs. Maria Weaver, the Penn street milliner, was to the city beginning of this week, and now the ladies all stare and firmly declare that they never before beheld such a fine collection of new millinery goods as are this year displayed at Mrs. Weaver's establishment.

—Judge White, of Pittsburg, has made a decision which will be of considerable interest to the colored population of the country. It is in effect that a colored man's countenance is prima facie evidence that he was born in this country, and is therefore a citizen of the United States.

—We hear that Prof. J. H. Kurzenknabe, of Harrisburg, is at work on another song book, which when completed is said to eclipse any of his former popular publications. The professor's friends and all others who are acquainted with his compositions anticipate a fine musical work.

—D. A. Musser made a great improvement in the large dam north of town. He had a number of men at work cleaning out the rubbish and digging the bed several feet deeper. The result is increased water power for his mill, which enables the miller to grind uninterruptedly. The job was done last week.

—J. Wm. Harter, one of Rebersburg's merchants, who, by the way, is wide awake to business and always carries a complete and very select stock of goods, is at Philadelphia this week to purchase a new supply of general merchandise for the fall and winter season. He is bound to please his customers as to quality and price of goods.

—Several of Millheim's carpenters have been working at Bellefonte the greater part of the past summer, among them John and Geo. Royer, of North street. The erection of the new iron furnaces and a large number of new dwelling houses in that place drew many mechanics from all parts of the county to the county seat.

—The friends of H. H. Tomlinson, a former merchant of this town, now residing in Ellsworth, Kansas, will be glad to hear that he and family are well and getting along nicely. Mr. Tomlinson is the senior partner in a grocery store, and with his natural business enterprise will no doubt make things boom in that western town.

A VALUBLE ESTATE FOR SALE.—F. P. and T. E. Vonado, administrators, offer for sale all the real estate of the late Henry Vonada in Haines twp. The estate consists of three tracts of land, situate about one mile northeast of Woodward, and all of them well improved. This estate offords a good opportunity for solid investment. See bills and notice in this week's paper.

—The schools began on Monday morning under very favorable auspices. The attendance of the primary department amount to 62 pupils, while in the grammar department 25 scholars were enrolled. The North street school started with 48. The fact that we have a set of model teachers this season is a source of gratification to all parents who are concerned about their children's mental advance and training.

—Ladies, your taste will be suited by a look at my fancy line of coats.
D. S. Kauffman.

—A good Overcoat at Kauffman's store, from $7 to $10.

—A lot of fine groceries just received at J. W. Stover's.

—Marshall A. H. Dill and family removed from Lewisburg to West Philadelphia last week.

—Man at the telephone—No shoddy goods kept at the boot and shoe store of J. H. Musser & Son.

—E. E. Knarr, Wm. S. Maize and E. W. Mauck, all of this place, are painting in Nittany Valley this week.

—The woodshop of Hartman's foundry on Penn street was greatly improved by the laying of a new floor.

—The cold waves are here and so is my stock of Underwear in endless varieties. Come and see. D. S. K.

—Mrs. Dr. S. G. Gutelius, of this place, is at present visiting friends and relatives in Mifflinburg and other points east.

—Talk about your pumpkins. Wm. Kerstetter of near town comes to the front with one that measures 70 inches in circumference. Next?

—C. A. Snow & Co., patent lawyers, Washington, D. C., report that a patent has been granted W. R. Jenkins, of Bellefonte, for a coal carrying car.

—Democrats not having paid a tax within two years should attend to it now. Next Saturday, Oct. 8th, is the last day to pay a voting tax. Do not put it off until the last minute.

—Millheim needs new sidewalks in all parts of the boro'. Town council will have to issue special orders, if the work is to be done before winter sets in with its snows, rain and slush.

—Our readers will please notice L. B. Stover's announcement of his store at Madisonburg, in another column. Mr. Stover is a wide-awake business man who makes it a point to please his customers.

—J. W. Snook is beautifying the surroundings of his brick mansion on Penn street, by filling up and leveling his yard with rich ground. "Cuff" Alters, that handy fellow, does the work and it will be done right, too.

—Nevan Auman's grocery on Main street seems to be headquarters for checker playing. There are some interesting match games played there every evening, in the presence of a goodly number of spectators.

—An interesting event at the Lancaster county fair at Lititz this week will be the public marriage of farmer George Ryan and Miss Laura Hoover, of Lancaster, Governor Beaver tie having consented to the knot.

—James Musser, whose return home from the South we announced last week, arrived in town last Monday evening, considerably reduced in health. He is afflicted with malaria and has been ailing for well nigh a year.

CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENT.—Rev. Z. A. Yearick makes the following appointments for next Sunday: The Lord's supper will be celebrated in the Reformed church at Aaronsburg in the forenoon; there will be preaching at St. Paul's in the afternoon, and in the U. B. church in Millheim, in the evening.

—We had a call from John D. Decker, of Potters' Mills, on Tuesday afternoon. He is the Republican candidate for county commissioner and was down to hunt up his republican friends. Mr. D. is a quiet and pleasant gentleman who seems to have but one fault, and that is he that travels in bad company politically.

NEW MILLINERY AT REBERSBURG.—Mrs. Louisa Harter has opened a millinery shop in Rebersburg and will receive the latter part of this week an elegant stock of new millinery goods, comprising the latest styles in hats, bonnets, ribbons, laces, feathers, &c. She desires the ladies of Rebersburg and vicinity to call and inspect her stock. Her motto is the best goods at the lowest prices. Look out for her advertisement next week.

—Musser & Alexander, our popular marblemen, received the elegant and large granite monument intended for the grave of the late George Shafer, of Zion, on Tuesday morning, and had the same taken to the Zion cemetery to mark the last resting place of the deceased. This monument is one of the finest that has yet been put out from the Millheim marble works and will be the handsomest piece of work on that graveyard. What is of special interest to parties in need of tombstones are the low prices they charge for their work, a consideration that is very important to the average purchaser.

—The register of the National Hotel at this place, H. G. Shafer proprietor, shows up remarkably well for the past week, a large number of travelers having stopped there, which would indicate that Shafer and his landlady understand full well to treat their guests in the best style. Among those who put up at the National last Saturday were Miss Fairy Shafer, of Reading, and Miss Ida Kreamer, of Rebersburg, accompanied by Messrs. R. I. Frantz and J. A. Shreckengost, of Tylersville, all of whom arrived in town mounted on horseback and after partaking of supper returned home under the soft beams of a full moon.

—The chronic grumblers seem to be a necessary adjunct in most communities. And Millheim, along with other towns, is not behind in that line. Every progressive step, if ever so necessary, is opposed by these disagreeable fellows, simply because their local taxes may be a few cents higher. At present there is considerable squealing about the improvement of the town hall, and still, when completed, these very grumblers, in their inmost hearts, are glad themselves that the local authorities had the sand to go ahead with a work that will do the town credit. Filling a borough office is pretty much like running a newspaper—you can't please them all and so you must do things the best you know how.

—A fine, satin-lined Overcoat at Kauffman's store for $11.

—Don't forget to call on J. W. Stover and examine his assortment of gents' gloves. He has certainly a fine selection and sells them at great bargains.

—Man at the telephone—We have at Musser & Son's shoe store Kip and French Kip, grain, sewed and pegged Calf Boots, for men and boys, heavy and light weight, Duck rubber boots, felt boots from $1.35 to $1.75.

—John Reinhold, Reading, Pa., is at present sojourning in these valleys and is buying up apples to ship to the eastern market. When through with his canvass he will have shipped about seven carloads, or 3000 bushels.

ALWAYS ON THE GO.—The meat wagon of Gettig & Kreamer's meat market. They are doing a slashing business and all their customers are pleased with their splendid meat. When in need of fresh beef, pork or mutton give them a call.

—All are invited to call on Miss Sadie E. Grove and examine her stock of Fall and Winter Millinery goods which have just been received from New York. Her place of business is in J. G. Meyer's house, opposite the hotel in Aaronsburg.

—Ex-Gov. Curtin treated us to a liberal dose of congressional records the receipt of which we hereby acknowledge. It required a bushel basket to carry the bulky documents from the post office down to the JOURNAL office and increased the library in our paper room by about fifteen volumes.

—Boiling applebutter, making soap and cleaning house are the chief aims of the housewife's life at this season of the year, and the docile benedict stands in awe of the big black "kittles," the large rolls of carpets and manifold joints of stove pipe, and respectfully awaits orders from headquarters.

—An inquisition board of three, an attorney, a physician and a reliable citizen, were summoned to Squire Reifsnyder's office on Tuesday, to decide upon the sanity or insanity of John Cummings, the farmer on Jacob Sankey's farm. The committee declared Mr. Cummings insane and will so report to the next quarter session court.

AN OLD NURSE'S THIRTY YEARS EXPERIENCE.—An old nurse of thirty years experience says that she has never used a wine that has had such a pleasing effect on her patients as that made by Mr. Alfred Speer, of Passaic, N. J. It is a pure article and people have confidence in it. Ask any noted physician. For sale by druggists.

—Mr. Charles Stover, of Aaronsburg, contemplates removing from there, to take charge of a grocery store at Hughesville, Lycoming Co. We are not able to say when the change will occur but presume some time this fall. Mr. A. O. Deininger, the gentleman's father-in-law, now engaged in the cigar making business at Clarkstown, Pa., also intends moving to Hughesville, with a view of carrying on the cigar business more extensively there.

—Dyspepsia makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. We know of no remedy for dyspepsia more successful than Hood's Sarsaparilla. It acts gently, yet surely and efficiently, tones the stomach and other organs, removes the faint feeling, creates a good appetite, cures headache, and refreshes the burdened mind. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial. It will do you good.

WOODWARD'S SENSATION.—The good people of Woodward, the little village at the eastern end of the valley, are at present in a feverish state of excitement. A good horse, of a sorrel color, has been found dead in the thick woods in the Narrows, about two miles east of Woodward. The horse has evidently been shot, but nobody knows whose horse it might be nor had anybody seen the animal taken there. All kinds of wild rumors are afloat in the neighborhood and many even sniff foul play. As the matter is wrapped in mystery we are unable to satisfy our readers with particulars this week.

CRITICAL SITUATION.—Watchmaker P. H. Musser had an unpleasant encounter the other day, while returning home from a hunt in the woods. To make a short cut he crossed the fields of Jared Snook's farm, west of town, when two large dogs came running after and made for him in dead earnest. Philip felt that it was a dangerous encounter and raised his gun in self defence. The dogs understood and stopped, but as soon as Philip rested arms they renewed their attack. He had to keep the brutes under cover of his gun-barrel and back out of the field until he reached the fence which he cleared and thus put an unsurmountable barrier between himself and the bloodthirsty hounds. Had he been on the highway there would be two canines less in the world, but under the circumstances he was willing to let the dogs alone as long as they left him alone.

—The Lutheran Synod of Central Pennsylvania which was in session at Mifflinburg on Tuesday, Sept. 27th, was opened by Rev. P. Graif, of Mifflintown. The proceedings of this ministerial body are reported as having been of the most interesting character. In the matter of beneficiary education it was stated that nine young men are at present receiving aid from the synod to pursue their studies for the ministry. $1300 will be needed in the coming year for the same purpose. The reports on beneficience indicated that $5 397.27 were contributed to benevolent objects, an increase of $340 over last year. In addition to this the W. H. & F. M. Society have contributed $1000. Charles T. Aikens, of Milroy, was licensed to preach the gospel, and J. M. Stover was ordained. Rev. S. E. Furst, of New Berlin, was elected President, Rev. A. H. F. Fisher, of New Bloomfield, Secretary, and Rev. W. H. Diven, of Salona, Treasurer. Synod adjourned to meet at Bellevillein 1888.

—Man at the telephone—Velvet, Felt, Grain and Carpet, embroidered and unembroidered Slippers, a big variety; also Ladies' and Gents' Waukenphast shoes.

—Ladies, come and feast your eyes on the fancy Dress Cloths at my store.
D. S. Kauffman.

WORDS FULL OF ENCOURAGEMENT.—We are not naturally of a boastful spirit but the following letter from one of our regular subscribers in the west is too good to keep hid under a bushel and we publish it to give our Millheim people the assurance that they have cause to be proud of their local paper:

Seville, Medina Co., O., Sept. 27th, '87.

EDITOR JOURNAL: Enclosed find one dollar to pay for your valuable paper for another year. I am glad to see your paper enlarged and improved so that it ranks second to none in your county, considering the low subscription price. I hope that the people of Pennsvalley and through the county will appreciate your efforts to furnish them such a clean and newsy paper at such anominal price. May success crown your efforts,

Truly Yours
A. G. Heckman.

NATIVE OF MILLHEIM MARRIED.—The following item which appeared in last week's Carrington (Dakota) News is a clipping from the Clinton County Democrat, published at DeWitt, Iowa, the bride's home. Most of our readers know the happy groom, who is a son of our townsman, Jacob Eisenhuth, Esq., and in republishing the account of Willis' wedding we add our hearty congratulations:

Mr. Willis H. B. Eisenhuth, of Carrington, Dakota, and Miss Laura Kelly, of this city, were married yesterday at the residence of the bride's parents, at 4 o'clock p. m., Rev. Chapple officiating. The affair was a quiet one, only a few friends of the contracting parties being present. After the ceremony was performed, those present sat down to an elegant repast, which was prepared for the occasion, after which the bridal party took their departure on the 6.01 train for Minneapolis and other points of interest, after which they will settle in Carrington, where the groom is a successful business man. The bride was born and reared in DeWitt, and was a lady admired by all. She was for a long time teacher in the High School, and was highly esteemed by both patrons and pupils. The groom has long been a resident of Carrington, Dakota, where he is engaged in the drug business, and is to be congratulated upon his success in the matrimonial lottery. The Democrat joins with the community in wishing them success through life.

Local Correspondence.

SMITH TOWN.

A little like winter on Tuesday. Hence the farmers are thinking of cornhusking.

John Keen had the misfortune to lose two of his hogs. J. H. Frank has also one that is sick.

The farmers are busy gathering their winter apples.

The wet weather made havoc in the cloverseed.

A number of our folks were away visiting over Sunday. J. H. Frank's and W. F. Smith's left last Thursday for Painterville, near Lewistown, to visit John Stover. They returned on Monday. W. C Duck and wife were visiting in Nittany over Sunday. Your correspondent had the pleasure to make a short visit to Bellefonte, our beautiful and lively county seat, last week, and every place he looked to he could see a picture of JUMBO.

AARONSBURG.

And still they are going up—potatoes.

Haas, the umbrella mender, traveled through town beginning of this week.

S. H. Diehl turned out a very fine two-seated carriage on last Monday.

Mrs. Howard Homan, of Centre Hall, is visiting friends here this week.

Turb Kreamer, of down St. Mary's way, raised his dwelling house last week.

Rev. and Mrs. Irey, of Chester Springs, Pa., arrived on Tuesday to spend a few days with the lady's parents, Dr. P. T. Musser.

Ed. Kister, of Boneville, went to Lochiel, Union Co., last Tuesday morning to take a seat of work at his (shoe) trade for Noah Slear. Edward intends to put in a few solid weeks.

Ed. Mingle and family were visiting the gentleman's brother, Capt. A. Mingle, the boot and shoe man at Bellefonte, Pa.

Mrs. Rev. J. A Bright, of Abilene, Kansas, arrived here on last Monday evening. She is the guest of the gentleman's parents, Mr. Geo. Bright's. The lady had been visiting her parents, Mr. Shearer's, at Milton, Pa., prior to her arrival here.

Cider, any amount of it at $2.00 per barrel and the apples thrown in. Won't you have some?

The funeral of Mrs. Chas. Horner, of near Spring Mills passed through town last week. The lady remains were interred in one of the cemeteries below town.

ANOTHER.

POE MILLS.

Supt. J. M. Grubb was home to Milton over Sunday.

Prof. Bernes went to the Milton fair. He took a piece of calico with him and volunteered to look after cats for J. B. K.

John Slifer and his crew of "Johngearians" commenced work on the new T. P. V. road on last Thursday.

William Moody, from Poe Valley Junction, was down to the mill the other Sunday and called on pap and mam and also on "Let'er go Billy."

D. R. Kulp & Co. built a depot at the P. V. Junction for the donkey man, James Bonawitz.

John Hoover, the blacksmith, had a large crowd at his shop last Thursday evening, reading the latest accounts of the Kitchin "cat-astrophe" in the Journal.

Harvey Swartz and Allison Miller cut a large bill of yellow pine lumber for McConnell & McWilliams, at Shamokin. It is to be used for an ice house 8x10x51 feet.

Two more wrecks on the P. V. road Friday and Saturday. Both trains two hours late, but all hands in good humor. Let her go Billy.

M. Slifer was up to Millheim the other Saturday and found it very moony, especially on the hill.

A party of deer hunters were down to Pine swamp on Saturday but they report the deer very scarce there. We have a few dears down here at the mill. Ask b. l. h. g. about it.

The happiest man in Poe Valley is Michael Oxenrider. Another Oxy.

The Junction boys were out coon hunting one night last week. They also kept one eye on the look-out for the one-eyed John. They run across a strange animal and captured it. Captain Oxy kept it on exhibition several days and had half a notion to speculate by offering it to P. T. Barnum for his menagerie. But all these ideas were rudely dispelled by an angry woman from Poe Valley, who came after her six-year-old pet swine and Captian Oxy had to give up his prisoner. If you want to see some boys blush all you need to do is to squeal like a pig. TEXAS COW BOY.

There seems to be a great deal of dissatisfaction about the change of schoolbooks in our township. Some of the poorer class declare that they will keep their children at home from school sooner than buy new books. This would certainly be a mistake on their part, because it would deprive the children of many valuable schooldays.

Andrew Weaver lost his pocket book containing in the neighborhood of eight dollars. Mr. Weaver is a poor man and feels his loss keenly. We hope the finder will be honorable enough to return the pocket book to its owner.

G. W. Stover's bullock stopped the early morning train the other day. That's doing a great deal for a bullock.

Mrs. Peter Breon has a sunflower measuring 29 inches in diameter. Open for competition.

Mrs. G. W. Stover has returned from her visit to Lebanon county well pleased but surprised at the many changes that have taken place there since her last visit. She could hardly recognize her old birthplace.

Mr. Daniel Hosterman has lost four hogs with the same disease which made such sad havoc among the porkers in the lower end of the valley.

Misses Annie and Cora Gettig, of Spring Mills, were visiting friends in this neck o' woods.

Quite a large party of hunters were out last Saturday but hadn't their "luck" along and returned without any game whatever.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Addison, of Baltimore, are here on a visit to Mrs. Addison's mother. They expect to stay some time as they have not been here for a long time.

John Weirick, our saddler, expects to spend a few weeks in Mifflinburg in the near future.

Jas. N. Leitzell has gone to New Jersey on business and pleasure,

Mrs. G. A. Runk will leave here to take up her abode in Flemington, N. J., where she expects to make her future home. This place will lose an estimable lady and a good and kind neighbor.

D. G. Smith has gone to Philadelphia to attend lectures at the Jefferson Medical College in that city.

PENN HALL.

Major Huss, from Linden Hall, and some of our boys were out coon hunting on Friday night, but they were not very successful on account of the rain.

Mrs. Charles Horner who had been sick for several months died on last Wednesday. The interment took place on Saturday in the Salem Reformed cemetery, Rev. Deitzler (Luth.) officiating. Mrs. Horner had arrived at the age of 60 years 2 months and 7 days. She leaves a husband and six children, (2 sons and 4 daughters) to mourn her death.

Mr. D. G. Smith left on Monday morning for Philadelphia to enter the Jefferson Medical College.

The schools in this township opened on last Monday. We understand that the teachers, with the exception of one or two, are very much dissatisfied with the manner the board stationed them. It is indeed amusing to see the educators of the young on their three and four-mile tramp to their respective forts. The directors certainly made a bad deal and if they desire to be re-elected they must do better in the future.

The game of croquet which was played on Saturday afternoon was rather slim. The heaten parties quarreled too much among themselves. DENVER DAN.

REBERSBURG.

The hog cholera prevails in this valley to a serious extent.

Samuel Brumgard and Thos. Walker each sold a black horse the other day to one and the same man.

Jonathan Spangler is at present making preparations to build a large hennery. He intends in the future to have his chicks hatched out by the hundred by means of an incubator.

Mrs. Samuel Condo met with quite a misfortune last Saturday. She walked through the kitchen to close the door when she slipped and fell, breaking her leg. The fracture was attended to at once and the lady is doing as well as possible.

Thos. Walker's maid left last Saturday with the intention of looking for a job in the Millheim Knitting Mills.

Wm. Kreamer while out gathering chestnuts found a bur which contained seven plump chestnuts. He considers it quite a curiosity.

Benj. Beck, who is building a new manure shed for Danl. Weaver, was standing on some kind of a scaffold, nailing overhead, when his foundation went out from under him, causing him to fall and seriously hurt himself.

Eliza Gramley, daughter of Geo. Gramley, residing south of Rebersburg, died on last Sunday evening, aged 18 years and a few days. She was in delicate health from her childhood, but a few weeks ago she took seriously sick and finally yielded up her young life.

Our schools, with the exception of Brumgard's, where they are repairing the building, began last Monday.

Ida Morrison, of Lock Haven, spent a few days among friends and relatives in this neighborhood.

Husking corn is the go this week.

Maggie Bierly, the skillful seamstress, expects to leave this place in about three weeks and will go to Chicago.

A great many of our people are taking their apples over to Ira Snyder's press to have their cider made.

Thos. Walker and Newton Brumgard attended a lawsuit in Nittany Valley the other day.

Ellin Garret from Illinois is here visiting friends and relatives.

James Ketner's and John Weaver's, from Coburn, were over on a visit last Saturday.

JACK'S REFORMATION.

Jack was full of clams and beer. The beer was nothing new in Jack's experience, but the clams were something of a novelty to him. He had been spending the day at Glen Island, and had partaken so freely of both the solid and the liquid that he was puzzled as to which to attribute his unsteady gait. It was 1 o'clock in the morning. He had just left the elevated railroad and was zigzagging homeward with his white hat on the back of his head and his hands in his pockets, singing softly to himself:

The man in the moon is looking, love;
He's winking, love; he's blinking, love;
And each little star will tell——

Here Jack ran against a tree and lost the thread of his song. After recovering his hat, which had rolled in the gutter, Jack resumed his journey, and turning up a quiet side street climbed up a front stoop and sat down upon the topmost step. The moon was shining brightly and paling the street lamps. The horizon was let up with a glow like that of a prairie fire, and the chimneys across the way stood out black and distinct against the glowing background. From far down the street he could hear a party of serenaders singing an old song which sounded familiar to him. Jack was beginning to get sobered. He put his hollowed hand behind his ear and listened. Yes, although he could not hear the words, the serenaders were so far away, he could supply them himself:

There's a heart beating for somebody,
Lighting the home he loves best,
Warming the bosom of somebody—
Warming the bosom of somebody, oh!

and the "oh" came wafted down the street in a tuneful little cadence which died away like a sob in the distance. The song brought to Jack's remembrance an old-fashioned farmhouse on a Vermont hillside. There were horsehair chairs in the room and a picture of Washington and his family on the wall. In the corner stood a little melodeon with squeaky bellows, the complaining of which he could hear even now through all the intervening years. Before the melodeon sat a young girl whose blue scarf matched the color of her eyes and who was playing the very tune he had just heard. The "oh!" at the end of the song came softly to him out of the past and it seemed to Jack to have something of regret in it. Jack took off his hat and ran his hands through his hair. He lapsed into reminiscence again, and remembered how he had married the blue-eyed girl and brought her to the big roaring city; how the babies had come one after another until they had three; how his little woman's eyes had lost some of their lustre from weeping, and how he stayed out late o' nights drinking beer when he should have been home looking after the welfare of his wife and babies. By this time Jack was thoroughly sobered and repentant. He felt in his pocket for his latchkey, but the key wasn't there. He didn't care to ring the bell, because he was afraid of his wife's anger. The window had been left up because the night was warm, but he thrust his hands between the blind slats and tried to undo the fastening. A low growl made him withdraw his hand quickly. Then it occurred to him that it was only his setter dog, and he whistled softly to the dog and the animal whined a recognition. After struggling with the fastening until he succeeded in unfastening the window he lodged on the window sill when he tried to climb in, and, loaded as he was, teetered back and forth, at the imminent risk of tumbling into the stone basement below. At last he rolled into the room with a thump which shook the whole house. He had just gathered up his bruised body and placed it upon the sofa when the door opened and his wife made her appearance.

'So you've returned, have you,' said she sarcastically, while her eyes blazed like ardent coals. 'The baby is sick with the croup up-stairs, but of course you don't care anything about that. We might all be taken down with the cholera and you wouldn't know anything about it. I suppose you've had a very pleasant time to-day with your friends, and are as drunk as usual. This thing has gone on as long as it is possible to last. Get down, Royer. I could curse you, sir. Even the dog is a better protector than you are. I hate you. That's what I think of you,' and she struck him a blow in the face with the flat of her hand which made his head ring. 'Oh, you deceitful wretch, if I had a pistol I would shoot you,' she continued.

Jack gritted his teeth together and clenched his hands. He half arose from the sofa, and then his good sense prevailed and he resumed his seat. The door closed with a bang behind his wife and he was left alone in the room with the dog.

'Old fellow,' said Jack, taking the dog's silky ears in his hands and looking down into the dog's brown eyes, 'old fellow, things is getting mighty warm around here, aren't they?'

The dog thumped his tail and emitted a short bark.

'And somebody's to blame, eh, old fellow?'

The dog put his forepaws on Jack's knees and whined.

'The little woman exaggerates my weakness, but in the main she's about right. What d'ye think?'

The unfailing barometer of a dog's emotion, his tail, played a tattoo on the floor and he executed a dance on the parlor carpet inviting a frolic.

'No, Rover, there's no funny business about this. This affair is serious. There's got to be a reformation. You remember old man Luther had a reformation, don't you? Yes, I suppose you do. Well, here's what's going to reform; going to give up beer and clams and staying out nights. Back, old fellow, lie down in the corner,' said Jack, as he opened the door on a crack and listened. A faint sound as of sobbing came down the stairs. Jack closed the door and resumed his seat.

'It's raining up-stairs. I'm afraid the little woman will get wet. Now, I'm going to take off my shoes and see if the roof leaks. You lie right down here in the corner and keep still till I come down,' said Jack, speaking to the dog, who slunk off into the corner in a shamefaced way.

Then Jack stole softly up stairs and peeped into the room, where sat his wife with her face hidden in the bedclothes. She was sobbing violently and Jack's heart was touched. Jack walked up to her and placed his hand upon her shoulder.

'Little woman,' said he.

Louder sobs but no answer.

'Little woman,' he resumed, trying to swallow his throat, 'I've been a big brute to you and the children, but if you'll try to overlook what I've done in the past I'll try and do better in the future.'

'Oh, Jack, I struck you!' came from the bed-clothes in smothered accents.

'Never mind that, little woman. It didn't hurt me.'

Jack sat down upon the side of the bed and drew his wife upon his knee. She hid her face upon his shoulder just as she had often done in the olden times in the house upon the Vermont hillside.

'Do you think you can give me another chance?' said Jack.

'It was all my fault, Jack, and I'm very sorry.'

'Well, we'll call it square then and start in again. What d'ye say?'

'Oh, Jack!' was the only reply, and then there followed a sound which had something of sweetness and requital in it, and borne on the wind from half a mile away came the refrain:

Warming the bosom of somebody, oh!

Singing Themselves to Sleep.

Mrs. Merriam Grant, one of the people wounded in the Chatsworth disaster, was in the rear car with her husband. In this car was a party of six young people. In order that they might sit together, Mr. and Mrs. Grant changed seats with a young man and his bride. Their courtesy saved their lives, for young people were killed. Mrs. Grant thought this party were theatrical people or concert singers, they were so jolly and sang so well. They could sing and they laughed and told stories and anticipated the pleasure of the trip until late at night. Then Mrs. Grant composed herself in her chair and covered her face with her handkerchief to go to sleep. Nearly everybody in the car was quiet except the jolly party of six. About this time the young bride was requested to sing 'Nearer, My God, to Thee.' Something in the desire to sleep and rest recalled the dear old song. The young woman sang, and all listened while the train sped on.

As the little gleam of devilish fire appeared far down the track their voices swelled in:

"Yet in my dreams I'd be Nearer my, God, to Thee."

The speed of the train increased down the grade. Again the song swelled in:

"There let the way appear, steps unto heaven."
The way was already in sight.
"All that Thou sendest me in mercy given."

And then, with but a moment of life left for each of them, even when poor Ed. M'Clintock's hand was giving its last desperate wrench to the engine, the singers sang to their God:

"Angels to beckon me
Nearer, my God, to Thee."

Enough. It was finished. The engines struck the frail bridge and it sank. The car containing the singers crushed like a bolt of Jove through the two cars in front of it killing and grinding as a foot kills a worm. In the same instance another car crashed through it, and the singers were dead.—Springfield Republican.

Care of a Tramp's Hands.

"One of the essential points of success in my profession," said a dilapidated old tramp who was talking to a reporter from behind the bars of one of the cells in the city jails recently, "is to keep the hands in good order. You don't understand what I mean, eh? What I mean by keeping the hands in good order is this: Of course, in tramping from town to town, a man is liable to be arrested for vagrancy at any time. He must tell a story of how he has just been thrown out of work and is looking for employment, which, as yet, he has not been able to find. In nine cases out of ten the judge will ask him to show up his hands, and when he does produce them they must be horny and toilworn. Catch on, do you?

So you see it is a part of my business to keep my hands looking as though they belonged to a man who was accustomed to work 365 days in the year. For that purpose I carry with me this small piece of hickory wood, which is round and very smooth. About twice a day I take it between my palms and rub them so that the friction will make them hard and callous. In that way, see I produce the 'real result' with very little trouble and annoyance. There is a bottle of brown liquid which I use occasionally for staining the back part of my hands a beautiful sunbrown color, and there you are. When I show up my hands and tell the judge that I am a hard working man, thrown out of employment by the strikes, what can he do but believe me? The trick has saved me many a day in jail, and I flatter myself is a strictly original idea, though it is spreading rapidly. The profession, you see, is beginning to realize that it will never do to show up to a hard-hearted police judge a pair of lily-white hands."

THEY were seated in the balcony, and he, the ardent and romantic lover, was breathing impassioned sentiment into the ears of the peerless but practical Priscilla.

'How sweet to me is the scent of roses!' he murmured, in his thrilling tones. 'The perfume of that queen of flowers affects me strangely, agitates me, nay, even forces the tears into my eyes!'

And Pegasus would have soared to even greater heights had she not brought him to earth with the commonplace comment:

'Well, do you know, I've noticed the same thing about onions!

"YANKEE DOODLE."

A Famous American Painting by an American Artist—Brief Sketch of A. M. Willard.

CLEVELAND.—Every one who visited Philadelphia during the centennial exhibition, and who went to see things with American eyes, were enraptured by a painting that came from Ohio, and was the production of an artist then comparatively unknown outside of Ohio. The painting was "Yankee Doodle," the artist, A. M. Willard, of Cleveland.

Frequently during the exhibition men and women, from North and South, East and West, gathered in groups before the painting and gave vent to their patriotism by singing that soul-stirring song, "Yankee Doodle." "Yankee Doodle" as a song reaches the American heart; but "Yankee Doodle" as a painting presents to the eye a scene which, once looked upon, can never be obliterated.

It was given to the world at a time when patriotism was at fever heat. It created a great sensation, and brought prominently before the public, its author. The fever heat of 1876 passed away, but "Yankee Doodle" lived, lives to-day, and will live as long as American art graces civilization.

Americans could find no fault with it. The very attitudes of the central figures spoke volumes of patriotism, the expressions of the faces told better than history of the heroism displayed in that mighty, unequaled, yet victorious struggle against British tyranny. It was a picture of the past, calculated to instill in young and old, a better, purer love for native land and heal the few wounds that still remained open from the civil strife of the "sixties." It accomplished all and still lives. In times to come, ages hence, may "Yankee Doodle," in song and painting, be the stars that shall lead America's mighty hosts on to victorious struggles against ignorance and tyranny.

While American critics could find no errors in the ideal treatment of the subject, a few foreign critics sought notoriety by attacking the artist for placing the fife and drum corps in front of an advancing regiment on the field. They claimed that it was incorrect and made a great deal of bluster. Their bellowings only increased the popularity of the painting, when it became generally known that these zealous critics were foreigners, and English at that.

Everyone knows well that the Continental army was not at all times proficient in military tactics. It mattered but little whether the band was in the front or rear. The music was there, and men were plentiful who would lead a regiment "into the jaws of death" with no other weapon to strike terror into the British heart than the inspiring air of "Yankee Doodle."

Mr. Willard knew this, and when he credited the famous painting he endeavored to give a vivid and faithful picture of real patriotism uncumbered of military tactics, and well he succeeded.

"Yankee Doodle" was exhibited for the first time at the Centennial, and was the central fiugre in the Art Gallery. Then it went to the "old South Church" in Boston. For some months that famous old structure was crowded with good old Yankee stock.

From Boston it was taken to San Francisco and exhibited for some time. Then it went to the Corcoran Art Gallery, in Washington, and then back to Cleveland. During this time the country was flooded with copies and the artist reaped his first harvest. The original was purchased by the late General Deveraux, of this city, who formerly presented it to the old town of Marblehead, Mass.

"Yankee Doodle" is an American painting from the easel of an artist who traces his ancestors back to the exciting days of 1776. Therefore it can be classed among the very few American productions of note.

A. M. Willard was born in Bedford, a few miles from Cleveland, in 1863. In those days Bedford was a far more important place than Cleveland. Alas! how time changes things.

At school young Willard was noted for one thing at least. He persisted in using the slate as a medium for illustrating certain horned domestic animals instead of worrying over long and short divisions. The teacher endeavored to "bull" the cattle market, but the young scholar never "sold short." When seventeen the hopeful young man obtained a little instruction in portrait painting. A thorough art education not being available to him, he learned the trade of a carriage painter. His remarkable ability soon manifested itself, and in a short time he became a skilled ornamental painter. The routine life of a village painter was not suited to his tastes, and he began to consider the opening of a new field. It was about this time that he produced the "Pluck" pictures which were sold extensively as chromos. "Pluck" was the dawn of day to him, and clear daylight came with "Deacon Jones."

In 1874 he moved to Cleveland, and early in '76 produced "Yankee Doodle."

Mr. Willard is well-known throughout the country, and is on intimate terms with all the prominent men of the day. He is an industrious worker and commands enormous prices for his work. One of his late works, "The Minute Men of the Revolution," was one of the great attractions at the New Orleans exhibitions.

—John have you seen that woman lately?

John, in astonishment: What woman? That woman picking Grapes for Speer's Wine. Just see her in another column and read about it, the wines are found by chemists to be absolutely pure and equal to the best in the World. The Board of Health in Large Cities and leading Hospitals have adopted their use where wines are needed.

AUNT KATE—"My dear don't you think if it had been the Lord's wish that you should have curling hair he would have curled it for you?"

Jessie—"And so he did, Aunt Kate, when I was a baby. He probably thinks I am old enough now to do it for myself."

CONJURERS' MISHAP.

Sleight-of-Hand Tricks That Proved Expensive to Their Performers.

Conjurers, despite the "quickness of hand" they usually get credit for, make some awkward and most amusing blunders. But they have this in their favor, that the audience seldom knows of the mishap that has occurred.

As is well known, a great many of the articles to be performed with are borrowed from the audience, such as watches, bank notes, rings, handkerchiefs, etc., and the owners of these articles should not be surprised if they receive them back in a damaged condition, when the treatment they are subjected to is taken into condition. They are supposed to be mashed, burned, or in some manner destroyed, and then mysteriously put to rights again; and, although sensible people know full well that the genuine article has not really been destroyed, but that a substitution has been adroitly effected, still the process of substitution is often attended with great risk to the articles operated upon—such as dropping them quickly into the operator's pocket, or into traps, or slipping them into an assistant's hand.

A conjurer performing recently in the south of Scotland asked for the loan of a watch. A gentleman lent him a valuable gold chronometer. A wonderful trick was performed with it, and the audience accorded the performer a heavy round of applause; but when the gentleman got his watch back a note was slipped into his hand intimating that his watch had been damaged, but he would be compensated for it at the close of the entertainment. The watch was indeed damaged—but the performer paid the owner its full price. Some performers have been most unfortunate in this way. We know one who had to pay the full price for damaged watches three times in as many years, and each time owing to the gross carelessness of his assistant.

A few years ago a young conjurer who has since acquired some celebrity, gave his first public entertainment, and was assisted behind the scenes by some kind friends. The loan of a bank note was requested, and one for twenty pounds was handed to the performer. This he successfully substituted for a sham note, passing the genuine one, by means of a trap in his table to his assistants behind. He then proceeded to burn the duplicate at the flame of a candle, all the while enjoying the discomfiture of the lender, who apparently fully believed that his twenty pound note was being destroyed, and who was heard to remark: "If I had known he was going to do that with it he shouldn't have got it." But the performer's enjoyment at the lender's anxiety was of short duration, for when the act of restoration came about he discovered to his horror that his friends had completely destroyed the genuine note as he had the sham one. An explanation was made to the lender, the audience knew nothing of the disaster, and before the conclusion of the entertainment the lender was compensated for his loss.

Prof. G., hailing from the North of Scotland, had acquired great dexterity in his manipulation of eggs, with which he performed a number of clever illusions. In practicing these feats he generally used hard boiled eggs, but he very carelessly allowed several unboiled eggs to get mixed up with the boiled ones, so that after some time he could not tell the boiled from the unboiled. He was punished for his carelessness in a way he never dreamed of. He was engaged to perform at a Christmas party held at the mansion of the Lord Provost, of a Scotch city. His audience on that occasion was the most fashionable to which he had performed either before or since.

His first experiment consisted in extracting eggs from the flame of a candle that stood upon his table. Three eggs were successfully produced, which he proceeded, as was his custom, to hand around to prove their genuineness; but in handing one of them to a gentleman to examine he allowed one of the others to fall, which, striking on the knee of a lady, broke and besmeared her dress.

The egg having been long in the performer's possession was considerably "stale." A disagreeable and sickening odor speedily filled the apartment, handkerchiefs and smelling bottles were brought into requisition, the young lady had to retire and change her dress, which she never wore again, the other ladies also quitted the apartment and the entertainment was brought to an abrupt termination.—London Tid Bits.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria,

Quicksand Swallowed the Train.

"Talking about railroad accidents," remarked an old railroad man in conversation about the Chatsworth horror, "the most remarkable one I ever knew of—and I've been running on the road now for nearly thirty years—was in Kansas on the K. P., not far from Fort Wallace, where a train of cars including the engine was thrown into the bed of a dry creek and never found. That is the engine and some of the cars never were. The engineer and firemen were both lost. The train was a freight and that's why there were no passengers to be killed. At the time of the Tay bridge disaster in Scotland, the train, which was blown from the bridge, or went through the bridge, which ever it was, was never found because the water and mud were deep and swallowed up the engine, while the coaches probably went out to sea with the tide. But there is no tide in that Kansas dry branch. The quicksand just swallowed everything."—[Chicago Tribune.

Writing Under Pressure.

In a chat the other day with a gentleman well-known in the literary world he told me a number of entertaining things in connection with his literary experience. I asked him, among other things, whether he had ever written anything under high pressure. We had been talking about inspiration, but he purposely misconstructed my meaning in the reply he made.

'Yes,' he said, 'I once wrote a poem of forty lines in as many minutes, and it wasn't a bad poem, either. It was a case of compulsory composition and taxed me more than I had ever been taxed before—or since. I had sent to a certain magazine a poem entitled 'The Light House in a Storm.' Not hearing about it for almost a year, I concluded that it had been declined. I then had it put in a literary weekly of which I was the editor, and had a fine engraving made of it. The page was made up, and was just about to go to the electrotypers, when the magazine for the month arrived, and, upon opening it, there was the poem. A cold chill ran up my back—or down it, I'm not certain which. Of course it couldn't appear in the other journal—but there was the engraving, the forty lines of space, the form ready to go to the electrotypers! I am up to the composing room. 'Can you hold that form for half an hour?' I asked of the foreman. 'I'll try, he said. I dashed off another lighthouse poem (so as to utilize the engraving), had it inserted, and was relieved of my embarrassment. It was entirely different from the other poem.' 'And which was the best poem?' I asked. 'The one which I was compelled to write,' he said. 'And if I was inspired I wasn't conscious of it, I'm sure. I'll show you both poems some day, and you can judge for yourself.'

Women's Work in Syria.

There are grand women in Arabia; women of ability, keen insight and wonderful capabilities. The duties of the wife of a Syrian to-day are as follows: She brings all the water for family use from a distant well; this is accomplished by filling immense jars, and bringing them upon her head. She rises early and goes to the handmill of the village, carrying corn, enough of which for the day's bread she grinds by a slow, laborious process. This she carries home and cooks in an oven which is made in the earth. It is a round hole, lined with oval and flat stones, and heated by a fire built in it. When the bread is mixed with water and a little salt she removes the ashes and plasters little pats of dough against the hot stones to cook. Could anything be more crude? She cares for her children—usually a large family—and does all the rough work at interyals, while the devoted (?) husband calmly smokes his "argelic," or sits cross-legged upon his divan or housetop, in conversation with some equally hard-working member of Syrian society. The houses are made of a coarse stone, roughly hewn. The housetops are of clay, covered with coarse gravel. In hot weather the sun bakes this mud-formed roof, and large cracks appear. The rain comes, and, as a natural consequence, the roof leaks.
